Southwest Luzon Power Generation Corporation (SLPGC) is extending the unplanned outage of its Unit 1 that initially occurred at noon on June 17, 2023.

The plant outage was caused by turbine tripping, which resulted from high axial displacement—an excessive movement of the turbine along its spinning axis.

SLPGC Plant Management is still investigating the cause of the excessive turbine movement, including a detailed inspection of the turbine component. Repair work and return to service are targeted before the end of August.

The insurance brokers and adjusters of SLPGC have been informed of the matter and are currently working with Plant Management to process the filing of the insurance claims.

Coordination with power industry regulators and other key stakeholders are likewise underway.
